[Translated and edited] by S. C. Malan. 'Collected, partly Translated, and Annotated, with an Introduction'. The supplementary material includes the 1860 annual report. This is a new print-on-demand hardback edition of the volume first published in 1860. Historians have learned many things about Columbus as a leader and a person from the personal letters he kept on his voyage to America. In one famous letter, it is revealed that Columbus had promised a reward of gold to whomever saw land first. A sailor named Rodrigo de Triana was the first to see land on October 12, 1492—a small island in the present-day Bahamas Columbus later named San Salvador. Rodrigo never got the reward; however, as Columbus kept it for himself. Letters in this volume will help readers discern more about Columbus. Annika Mombauer's essential source reader translates, cross-references and annotates a vast range of international diplomatic and military documents on the origins of the First World War. It collects together newly discovered or not previously available in English, drawn from a broad range of sources and countries into a single, indispensable text for students and scholars alike. The volume includes a detailed scholarly introduction which analyses the most controversial issues in the debate on the origins of the War and provides a comprehensive overview of the history of document collections on the war's origins. The documents cover the period 1911-14, with particular emphasis on the July Crisis and immediate outbreak of war. Thoroughly cross-referenced and annotated, these fascinating sources are presented with authoritative commentary, enabling readers to make connections between the documents to illuminate how the decisions for war were taken, and why. This will be an invaluable resource for anyone studying or teaching the origins of the First World War. This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important, and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it.
